Purva Design Studio

“We kept finding that clients would have an involved, excited energy when discussing finishes, paint colors and wallpapers—but lacked that energy when we talked about the bones of the structure—the Architecture. We wanted to change that! So now instead of imagining what their future house might look like, we hand our clients an Oculus headset and they ‘virtually’ enter their future home before it ever gets built!”

By now almost everyone has at least heard of an Oculus Headset. Not all non-techie types, however, are necessarily familiar with the myriad of ways it can be utilized. One of the most innovative implementations is to create a virtual reality, and for those less able to mentally visualize through description/blueprints – this technology is a game changer. Dallas architect Purva Jain is blazing a trail in this arena, creating 3D blueprints, allowing her clients to “walk inside and around” their future homes, well before the actual building process begins. This concept is invaluable in saving clients’ both time and money, by ensuring everyone is on the same proverbial page from the onset. Purva has developed a varied, diverse skill set in both architecture and interior design via her experiences working and living in New York City, Europe, and Asia. Purva and her team specialize in custom single family residential architecture, interior design, and boutique multi-family and commercial projects. Their single-family portfolio spans from custom single family primary homes to second vacation homes, and from ranch houses to lake houses, to boathouses, to party tiki huts! When asked if she prefers a certain type of project, Purva replied, “We like a fun challenge, whether a new construction house or a remodel or a boathouse, we thrive on challenge - not necessarily the project type!” Purva’s team is known for helping their clients from conceptual sketches to move in - advising creative solutions every step of the way. With her innovative approaches, renowned sense of style, and a 100% female owned business, Purva brings many unique and exciting elements to the Dallas architectural scene.

Purva Jain, Founder and Lead, specializes in single and multi-family residential projects including second vacation homes and boutique commercial office and retail projects, Purva strives to cultivate community. “When you create a shared space, so many memories are created and cherished between family, friends, and complete strangers. It is the connection that people have with a designed space that makes it so special.
